

Life is full of challenges including the troubles that come and go. What seems like trouble is in the long run an opportunity for growth. We should therefore make use of all these opportunities. Remember that you are your best helping hand; the solutions are in your head, heart and hands.

The world does not owe us a living. The only thing for us to do is that we should be focused in pursuit of our goals. Shared values are considered 'people values' and are the overall guiding central points from which all other individual principles hinge. Values are the foundation that determines some one's life. Individuals work actualizes our dreams and hard work that unlocks our potentials to achieve many things in life. Laziness, rigidity, dishonest and distrust close our opportunities. It is rare for an opportunity to find you in bed. You can maximize your potential through persistent hard work and not to blame other people for our failures.

Not knowing precisely what we want is not okay. If we can not name with specificity what it is that we want, then we will never be able to set up and claim it because the world can never give us what we have not asked for.

God gave us the power to choose what we want to do or to be. [Joshua 24:15] He can not intervene against our dreams. The power to choose remains our personal domain. The road you choose to travel will determine your destination in life. Just as you can make right choices based on values that lead your life to success – you are where you are because of the decisions you made yesterday. You will be where you want to be tomorrow because of the choices you are making today.

So we should make best decisions about our life and do not be contented with our successes. Fellow colleagues yearn for more achievements and avoid self-pity. Put God first, shared values second, an attitude to work hard third and finally life will prosper victoriously.
